Attention

You are prohibited from saving (including capturing), sound-recording, video-recording, and redistributing the transmitted videos and released material.

If you need to save those data, please obtain permission from all relevant parties in advance, such as the speaker and the organizer.

The copyrights of submitted extended abstracts belong to the Japan Society of Applied Physics.

The submitted extended abstracts will be published in the conference web program and J-STAGE (an online platform for Japanese academic journals provided by Japan Science and Technology Agency).

The abstracts submitted to the JSAP-Optica Symposia (held in the autumn meeting) will be also published in the Optica Publishing Group Digital Library.

Citation/Reuse

The rules of citation and reuse is the same whether the event is held online or in person.

●Citation

A citation refers to, for example, a case in which a person, to bolster their argument, uses another person's writing and explains that writing. Citations can be made without permission of the author provided that certain legal requirements are met

These legal requirements are as follows:

- [1] The material cited has already been made public.
- [2] A citation is necessary.
- [3] "The master-servant" relation between the citation and other parts is clear.
- [4] The citation is made clear with the use of quotation marks.
- [5] The amount quoted must be within the minimum necessary range.
- [6] The quoted work of another person must not be altered.
- [7] The source must be clearly indicated (except for reproductions, where customary practices may apply).

*Note: If the above requirements are not met and the use does not fall under "quotation," permission from the copyright holder is necessary to avoid copyright infringement.

*Note: Please pay special attention to figures, tables, book covers, and illustrations, as publishers and others may hold the copyright to these materials.

Copyrights/Citation Instructions

- Portrait Rights, Publicity Rights, Ownership Rights, Site Management Rights

When posting a photo of a person, obtain the person's permission, or process the person's face in such a way that the person cannot be identified (portrait rights).

Never use a photo of an entertainer or a celebrity (publicity rights).

Do not use photos or video clips of shrines, temples , works of art, etc. even if you have taken them yourself (ownership rights/site management rights).

- Please be careful when using figures and tables taken directly from a book. There are many cases in which publishers hold copyrights to figures and tables that they have created themselves. For this reason, you may not be able to disseminate such figures and tables even if you have obtained permission from the author.

- As for the cover page and pictures of a book, consult the publisher and abide by their proposed conditions.
